Fetition From Citizens of Massachusetts for Retalia-tion on the Canadian Government-The Chinese Indemnity-The Oleomargarine Bill Passes the House, Btc., Etc.

WASHINGTON, June 3.- In the senate, Mr. Dawes presented a petition from the city council of Gloucester, Mass., praying for retaliation on the Canada government for the seizure of American fishing vessels. This brought on an extended discussion of the existing complica-tion between this country and Cauada, but it was only upon the general subject, as no prorosed legislation was before the senate.

The bill indemnifying the Chinese for loss sustained in the Rock Springs, Wyoming, riot, was taken up, and Mr. Mitchell, of Oregon, was taken up, and his interest, of oregon, addressed the senate on it, arguing at length against any legal or moral obligation to pay money provided for in this act. The bill providing for the taxation of railroad grant lauds was taken up.

The bill provides that no lands granted to any railroad company by act of congress shall be exempt from taxation. Mr. Hoar withdrew his amendment limiting purchases by one person, under the act, to 640 acres, and then after debate by Messrs. Plumb, Hoar, Evarts, George, Call and Blair the bill was passed.

Mr. Van Wyck called up the house bill on the same subject, and on his motion the committee on public lands was discharged from its further consideration. He then moved the senate bill as an amendment in the nature of a substitute to the house bill.

The motion was agreed to and the house bill was amended accordingly. In the disagreeing vote of the two houses thus brought about, the senate, on motion of Mr. Van Wyck, ordered a committee of conference. This had the effect of avoiding the delay which would result from the consideration of the senate bill as an original proposition in the house of representatives and puts it at once in the hands of the conference committee.

Mr. Plumb submitted a conference report on postoffice appropriation bill, which he said, he did not expect to call up before next week, as the principal subject of difference was one on which several senators would desire to

The house then resumed the consideration The house then resumed the consideration of the oleomargarine bill.

Mr. Hatch, of Missouri, closed the debate in a long speech in support of the measure; He referred to the past consideration of the bill as one of the most remarkable parliamentary contests which had taken place in the house for many years. He defended the committee on agriculture, contending that it had not for many years. He defended the committee on agriculture, contending that it had not exceeded its jurisdiction in reporting a revenue measure and attributing much of the antagonism which it had net to the fact that it had not come from the ways and means committee. Gentlemen who had opposed the bill had started the cry of "fraud." There was not a single word in the proposition that any honorable man could object to. Mr. Brown, of Indiana, offered an amendment exempting from tax oleomargarine when sold under its true name. Rejected—yeas 118, nays 153.

Adjournment of the General Convention at

CLEVELAND, O., June 3.—The Knights of Labor convention is over. The general assembly at five o'clock this evening, after ten days session, adjourned sine die. The convention was called for the purpose of considering five subjects—the southwest troubles, the relation of strikes and boycotts, the relation of the trades-unions, rapidly increasing membership and labor legislation. The general assembly has given to the world no token that it has touched upon the southwest question. It is said that something has been done to shut off indiscriminate striking and boycotting, but the methods to be used have not been divulged. The assembly has regulated the reception of new members by recalling the commissions of its six hundred organizers. In legislation it has petitioned congress to give American land to American citizens and to appropriate non-residents alieus property, and has also asked congress to regulate the banking system by establishing loan offices in every county. The crowning act was a reply to the circular of the trades unions, which it was hoped would restore harmony between the orders engaged in labor act was a reply to the circular of the trades unions, which it was hoped would restore harmony between the orders engaged in labor reform. Brothers in the Cause of Labor: We, the Knights of Labor in general assembly convened, extend our heartiest greeting to all branches of honorable toil, welcoming them to a most friendly alliance in the common work. This organization embraces within its ofolds all branches of honorable toil and conditions of men without respect to trade, occupation, creed, color or nationality. We seek to raise the level of wages and reduce the hours of labor; to protect men and women in their occupations, in their lives and limbs and in their rights as citizens. We seek, also, to secure such legislation as shall tend to prevent unjust accumulation of wealth, to restrict the powers of monopolies and corporations, and to enact such wise and beneficial legislation as shall promote equity and jusice, looking forward to the day when co-operation shall supersede the wage system, and the classes that now divide men shall forever be abolished. We recognize the service rendered to humanity and the cause of labor by the Trades Union organizations, but beliere the time has come, or is fast approaching, when all who earn their bread by zations, but believe the time has come, or is as attended to their broad by the sweat of their brow shal be enrolled under one general head as we are now controlled by one common law—the

We have received a communication from a committee of national officers of some of the national and international trades unions requesting certain specific legislation at our hands but we believe that the object sought and stated in the preamble to the communication above referred to can best be accomplished by a conference between a committee of this association and a committee of any other organization, and as the propositions contained therein are inconsistent with our duty to our members, we therefore defer action on said propositions until a conference of the committees can be held. The basis upon which we believe an agreement can be reached necessarily include the adoption of some plan by which all labor organizations could be protected from unfair men—men expelled, suspended under fine, or guilty of taking the places of union men or Knights of Labor while on strike, or while locked out from work, and that as far as possible, a uniform standard of hours of labor and wages should be adopted, so that men of any trade enrolled in the order of members of a trades union as not come in each of entry union man admitting him to work in harmony together, a card of any term and a ames Next Monday as the Day-The Debate in the House of Commons—Mr. Morley Makes an Addess in Support of the Pro-micr's Bill-Other Items of Interest.

FOR A DIVISION ON THE HOME RULE BILL.

LONDON, June 3.-In the house of commons this afternoon, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, conservative, pressed Mr. Gladstone to fix a date for a division on the second reading of the home rule bill. Henry Labouchere, radical, protested against the fixing of an early date, announcing that twonty-seven supporters of the measure desired to speak before the vote. Charles Bradlaugh, radical, supported Mr.

Labouchere's protest. Mr. Gladstone fixed Monday as the date for division. In house of commons the debate on home rule bill was resumed by Mr. O'Conner. He said he thought that he was justified in saying that the argument of separation had vanished from the minds of all reasonable poli ticians. [Cries of dissent.] He contended that there was no country in the world whose history taught so eloquent a lesson against the history taught so eloquent a lesson against the establishments and endowments of religion as Ireland. He called attention to Mr. Bright's letter to the recent Chamberlain meeting and held that members who voted against the bill would incur a serious responsibility and would run a risk of not being returned. He protested against the imputations on Mr. Giadstone, contending that Mr. Chamberlain had insinuated that Mr. Gladstone was capable of chesting the hourse and esserted that had insinuated that Mr. Gladstone was cap-able of cheating the house, and asserted that so long as the five cenditions laid down by Mr. Gladstone for carring out the main prin-ciples of the bill were observed, the house and government would be free to accept any other plan, if the present bill were defeated, a weak tory gov-ernment, being revolutionary, would submit eroment, being revolutionary, would submit another home rule bill immediately. Mr. O'Connor said those who brought forward the separatists argument overlooked the fact that separatists argument overlooked the fact that peasant proprietary was a great obstacle to revolution. There was not a single section of Catholics that would for a moment tolerate the endowment of state or church in Ireland. Mr. Bright's letter to Chambellain ought to be published in order that the people might know whether he advised the vote calculated to precipitate dissolution. In the last election, he (O'Connor) tried to return a weak conservative government. If the conservatives had been success. ment. If the conservatives had been successful, the home rule bill would have been introduced on the day the housemet. During that election, every branch of the national league in England was a tory committee room. Conservative agents at Bolton paid for printing and circulating the Parnell manifesto.

Mr. Bridgeman, conservative, member for Bolton interposing, said he knew nothing Mr. O'Connor replied that Mr. Bridgeman was responsible for the acts of his agents with whom he still had an account to settle. [Cries of "Oh!"]

Continuing Mr. O'Connor said that honorable considerations restrained him, otherwise he could startle the house by revelations concerning the Camberwell elections, with reference to a Mr. Blount, a personal friend of Lord Randolph Churchill.

Mr. Churchill interposing, said he would take it as a favor if Mr. O'Connor relieved himself from restraint. [Conservative cheers.]
Mr. O'Conpor replied that he would require

Mr. O'Connor replied that he would require Mr. Blount's permission before complying with Lord Randolph's request.

Charles Bradlaugh supported the bill. He said that the objectors to the details of the measure, if they voted for a second reading, would have full opportunity to discuss details in committee. The choice lay between Mr. Gladstone and corrien.

Gladstone and coercion.

Mr. Morley, referring to Sir Julian Goldsmith's proposal that an understanding be arrived at on a basis similar to that adopted in the case of the seats bill, said he would not object to the adoption of any such course if the conditions were favorable, but the census of opinion was first necessarry. Did Sir Julian think that the tion which was advocating twenty years of coercion? [Cheers and cries of "no," "no," "withdraw."]

"I will withdraw the remark," respended Mr. Morley, "if a single member on the opposite bench shall disavow Lord Salisbury's speech." Regarding talk of ostracism, Mr. Morley thought the supporters of the government had most right to complain of threats in that direction, after what had been said lately about the long purses with which they were to be fought at the next election. Members told the house that they were willing to affirm tion which was advocating twenty years of told the house that they were willing to affirm the principle of home rule, and yet they had decided to oppose the bill, thus defeating their own object. The crisis was a grave one, and was different from that of Mr. O'Connell, to which Lord Hartington had referred. A great transfor-mation had occurred. No longer an alien church was in the ascendency. Landlords no longer had the absolute position they formerly had. The people had been enfranchised and were no longer serts. [Cheers.] There had been much talk of dismemberment. The dispersion of the Irish across the seas for many years was real dismemberment. In regard to a local government which many members were disposed to grant, Lord Salisbury, speaking at Newport, in 1885, argued that it was impossi-Newport, in 1885, argued that it was impossible to ignore the advantage of a large central authority over a merely local one. Morcover, in Ireland they had had a pretty large experience of the action of local authority. He instanced trial by jury, and asked how members could talk as they did of governing Ireland, when the whole people were against them, and how Lord Hartington proposed reform of the Irish administration would be brought about. Regarding the suggestion to make Mr. Parnell secretary for Ireland, without Parnell or any of his colleagues.

fiegarding the suggestion for Ireland, neither Mr. Parnell secretarw for Ireland, neither Mr. Parnell or any of his colleagues would accept the office. If they did they would soon lose their whole influence with would accept the once. It they do they would soon lose their whole influence with the existing state of things. [Irish cheers.] What was wanted was to get hold of those having an interest in the system, and desirous to carry on a regular and orderly method of government. It was his opinion that had the country spent half the money and attention bestowed upon Egypt and other foreign countries, Ireland would have been a support instead of a taunt to us. We had taught Ireland to be mendicant instead of self-reliant by alternative bribes and subsidies and by bolstering up the worst land system the world had ever seen. It was absurd to compare Ireland with Scotland. The government had chosen to proceed with the home rule bill instead of a resolution affirming principle, because it felt that it ought to be prepared with a plan. It had never expected to succeed by one blow or to carry the scheme by a rush. It was anxious and willing to to succeed by one blow or to carry the scheme by a rush. It was anxious and willing to consider any proposal which did not interfere with the principle of the bill or substantially with the power it intended to confer upon the new Irish legislature. To vote for a second reading of the bill he said was to vote for the principle of an autonemious legislation for Ireland. The government denied that the vote could mean more than this because the bill to be produced in autumn might contain notifibe produced in autumn might contain notifi-

Mr. Morley, continuing, said he thought that the letter had more force with Lord Hartington's meeting because Hartington, like Bright, objected to the principle of the bill, whereas Chamberlain accepted the principle but objected to the plan.

In conclusion, he referred to Lord Salisbury's remark about not paying attention to what the people said on their deathbeds, and said it was well known that sometimes men on their death beds left their last will and testament. This bill might be regarded as the last will and testament of the present government. The division about to be taken could not be the end. Even an electoral compaign might not be the end. [Loud cheers.] Let not the opponents of the bill imagine that by driving the government from the stage, the curtain would fall on the last scene of the fifth and final act of the Irish question. If the house refused to accept the solution now offered it might rest assured that no other measure, unless based upon the lines of this measure, would be carried a single effective stage further. THE LONDON TIMES ON BLAINE.

It is peculiarly absurd that he should pose as an advocate of a plan which he supposes, quite wrongly of course, would place Ireland in the position of a state of the American union. He has been conspicuous for the American union. He has been conspicuous for the same reasons which now make him a flatterer of the Irish, in the bloody shirt campaign against southern states rights, and if any southern state should now attempt to deprive the negroes of suffrage, he would be the first to favor a settlement of that local affair by the armed interference of the central government. His history is almost on a par with his reasoning, which deserves to be classed with Sir William Vernon Harcourt's lazest contribution, whereon Mr. Lecky has something to say.

What Mr. Lecky has to say is contained in another column of the Times in the form of a letter. This is a criticism of Sir William's argument that the home rule measure proposed by Mr. Gladstone atmed at simply the ravival of Henry Grattan's Irish parliament. Lecky's argument is absurd. Grattan's parliament, Mr. Lecky contends, places the government of Ireland in the hands of Protestants. The gentry who were, he says, bound to English connection by closer ties of interest and sentiment. "They were," adds Mr. Lecky, "pre-eminently presentatives of property, whose political power it has been Mr. Gladstone's steady object to destroy. The effect of his scheme would be to throw the government of Ireland into the hands of men hitherto the avowed enemies of both property and empire.

The St. James Gazette says it does not think that the sentiments uttered by Mr. Blaine express the genuine opinion of Americans upon the Irish questi

A CORRECTION FROM MR. BLAINE. He Writes a Letter About His Reference to Lord Salisbury.

AUGUSTA, Me., June 3.-The Kennebec Journal this morning publishes a letter to the editor from Mr. Blaine denying that in his recent speech at Portland, he had applied the words "imprudent," "insolent" and "brutal" to Lord Salisbury. Mr. Blaine writes: to Lord Salisbury. Mr. Blaine writes:

"In referring to his lordship's declaration that the Irish might remain as they are now or emigrate, I said interrogatively: "Is not this an imprudent proposition? lait not insolent in its terms? Does it, Indeed, stop short of being brutal in its cruelty? It is parliamentary to say that the statement is not true, but altogether unparliamentary to say that its author is guilty of falsehood. The first describes a thing, the second assails a person, My characterization was aimed at the proposition and not at Lord Salisbury personally."

DISCOVERY OF NATURAL GAS.

Birmingham Coming Into Possession of New Source of Wealth.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 3 .- [Special.] There is much excitement here over the supposed discovery of natural gas at Harding's cut, the work of Lockwood & Tate, on the Georgia Pacific railroad extension, fifteen miles from the city. The statement comes from reliable sources that negroes were drilling for a blast in the cut when suddenly the drill was forced upwards by natural gas. The negroes were injured and were given medical attention. The hole is twenty one feet deep, and sixty-three feet below the surface. The gas was black smoke, which passed away and was colorless. A negro handstouched a light to the gas, which shot up a blaze of fire above the cut, and burned with a blue slame, which gradually diminished until it was two feet above the hole. The heat of the same is intense and the workmen cannot work within twenty feet of it. No attempt has been made to extinguish the slame which still burns. A number of persons have been out to see the gas. It is estimated 2,500 have visited the place. It is stated the line of the railroad will be changed and the gas utilized. In this event the work which has been done on the Harding cut will be abandoned. The irm who have the contract were required to make a bond for $5,000 to complete the work in a specified time. There has been considerable excitement in Madison county over the contemplated railread from Augusta to Chattanoga. Colonel Henry Strickland, the Vanderbilt of Duluth, is taking a lively interest in the enterprise. He attended the railroad meeting in Harmony Grove a few days since.

Jenkins was formerly from Cartersville. After the difficulty he asked for his time, received his pay and departed for parts unknown. Kennedy was carried to his home badly but not seriously hurt. Josephus Myergrant, of this county, is certainly a natural artist. We were shown last week several beautiful drawings from the pen of Mr. Myergrant that would have done great eredit to a person of much more experience. The most beautiful drawing was that of the steambest at Montezuma, while plying upon the deep waters of the Flint, and as she passes under the bridge which spans between Monte zuma and Oglethorpe. Another scene exhib its the steamer as she approaches the bridge while a train of cars passes over the bridge. There were other drawings of landscapes, buildings, birds and flowers, but the scaeery at Montezuma surpassed them all.

He is one of the few men, in whose piety and concan be the few men, in whose piety and conscientous Christian character every one has the atmost confidence. Notwithstanding his great age, his mind seems but little impaired. He is something of a fisherman, and frequently walks out to Dr. McEntyre's farm two miles from Carnesville. His long life has been well spent, and he is a general favorite with all who know him.

Mr. Reynolds says that Colonel Holsey was at that time proprietor of the Banner, and having recently taken unto himself a wife, he spent most of his time at home, and was only seen at the office at rare intervals. It was after dinner on a Wednesday, and as the paper was behind all hands were unusually busy. He was foreman of the office and were busy. He was foreman of the office, and was working near a window, when a small, wiry, keen-eyed woman, middle aged and very well dressed, entered the composing room, with a shawl thrown over her arm, beneath which, he afterwards and most unexpectedly discovered, were concealed two horsemeu or chelling pistols. The woman walked to the middle of the room, then halted, and adversiry the state of the room, then halted, and adversiry the state of the room, then halted, and adversiry the state of the room, then halted, and adversiry the state of the room, then halted, and adventure of the room of the room. to the middle of the room, then haited, and addressing herself to one of the printers asked if the editor was in. She was informed that he was not. Mr. Reynolds then spoke up and explained that Colonel Holsey was the editor and proprietor of the prepr, but was at home, and would probably be down later in the day. Mr. Reynolds says he thought it was some woman who wanted to get her son apprenticed in the office. The woman made no reply, and Mr. Reynolds resumed his work, when suddenly he was stunned by a deafening noice and felta keen pain in his arm and side. He affrightedly glanced around, and there stood the woman with a smoking pistol in her hand and here yes almost darting sparks of fire. He saw eyes almost darting sparks of fire. He saw that she had another weapon in reserve, and without stopping to investigate the matter he made a rush for the door, running against his made a rush for the door, running against his assailant and knocking her over on the stove. He was followed by the rest of the office, including a Mr. Howell Flournoy, who was reading papers in the sanctum. Upon reaching the street. Mr. Reynolds examined his wounds and found that he was shot through the arm, the ball lodging in his side. The woman was arrested and tried, and as she was evidently deranged sent to the asylum. She evidently deranged, sent to the asylum. She hailed from some place in South Carolina, and had no ground whatever for her attack on the Banner office, save that some one in Augusta had jestingly told her that the paper had pub-lished some scandal about her, and she came to Athens armed for the purpose of wreaking revenge. She had visited several stores asking for powder and ball, and stating that she intended to kill a certain newspaper man before the left, but no one thought enough of the matter to warn the gentlemen threatened.

sumption against the fairness of the transaction; and where fraud is charged, it is a question for the jury, and they have a right, in determining whether it exists or not, to deduce it, on account of its subtle nature, from slight circumstances, and even the most solemn judgment obtained by resorting to such means is open to attack and liable to be annulled and set aside upon a bill filed for that purpose. The order of reference and the disposition of the report by the court—whether accepted and approved or not—do not appear in the record. If it should appear that by the terms of the order, the power of the auditor did not extend beyond the investigation and statement of accounts, and that the report, when made, was not accepted and approved by order of the court, there would be no objection to postponing its consideration until the facts essential to fixing the basis on which the account should to fixing the basis on which the account should be taken were ascertained in the manner indi-cated. Hall, J.—Under equitable pleadings in a claim case, the following facts, in brief, were alleged: A lot of land was sold to one Green and one Johnson jointly, half of the purchase money being paid cash, and a joint note being given for the balance. Green made the entire cash payment which was his full proportion. cash payment, which was his full proportion of the indebtedness. The land was conveyed to them jointly, and they afterwards divided it between themselves, each taking from the other a conveyance to the part assigned to him.
The note for the deferred payment was sued, a joint judgment was recovered, and the execution was levied on that portion of the land assigned to Johnson in the division. Had it been told for what it was recognible. been sold for what it was reasonably worth, and what it would have brought at a fair sale, it would have satisfied the execution, the full amount of which was legally and equitably chargeable to Johnson It was not fairly sold, because it was agreed between the vendor and Johnson that the former should bid it off for the benefit of the latter, who should have time to redeem it, in consequece of which agreement, and the representations of the vendor to others, persons attending the sales, were deterred from bidding, and the property was sold for less than half its value and less than the amount of the half its value and less than the amount of the execution. portion of the land held by Green, and to a levy of the fi. fa. his wife interposed a claim for herself and minor children. The evidence was conflicting:

Held, that the real point to be settled was whether the vendor, by his dealings with Johnson, deprived Green of the right and power of subjecting Johnson's property to the payment of the balance due on the execution, and whether he did so with the knowledge that Green had already paid his proportionate part of the debt, and that the land had been divided between him and Johnson for the purpose of severing their joint interest and fixing the liability of each of them as between themselves as to the payment of this execution debt, and whether, by any of his contracts with Johnson, to which Green was not a party, the vendor so depressed the sale of the land as that it failed to bring a sufficient amount to satisfy the demand he held against them. If such are the facts, Green would be discharged from the liability.

(a.) It was error to so charge as to withdraw from the consideration of the jury all right and interest which Green and the claimant under him had in the spropriation of the portion of the land assigned to Johnson, and to make it liable for the payment of this execution, without recourse upon him, or to so charge as to prevent the jury from considering evidence tending to show a purpose on the part of the vendor and Johnson to divert from its proper application the proceeds arising from a fair sale of the land, in fraud of the rights of Green.

The very essence of party organization is involved in accepting and abiding by every verdict fairly rendered by the party.

A contest for a democratic nomination is worse than useless, unless the friends of each candidate agree to support the nominee. If the friends of each candidate declare that they will oppose the nominee unless their favorite is nominated, there is neither sence or justice in making a fight for the nomination.

No man should engage in a contest for a party nomination who does not intend in good faith to stand by the nominee, whoever he may be, provided he is fairly nominated. Every man who goes into a fight for a party nomination is bound in honor to accept the result when it is fairly assertained and declared. No man who joins in a party struggle has the right to make his own opinion absolute over that of the party majority. Dr. Felton, who is actively engaged in the contest between General Gordon and Major Bacon, favors Major Bacon's nomination. He says if Major Bacon is nominated he will support him; that if General Gordon is nominated he will not support him. Dr. Felton undoubtedly has the right to take this position. Every man has the right to decide whether or not he would vote for any man. But no democratic newspaper and no democratic convention will say that men who take a leading part in the struggle for the democratic nomination are not bound to abide the result of the party vote when it is fairly east and counted. Without this being insisted on, there is no such thing as party discipline and party organization becomes simply a by word.

We see no reason for pressing this point further. We simply submit it to a thoughtful and reasonable democrats of the state. Here is a gentleman put forward as the leading champion of Major Bacon, who is trying to get the democratic nomination for governor. He declares openly that he will not support Major Bacon's opponent eyen if he is fairly nominated. Democrats will see precisely what this must lead to, and as Major Bacon's friends continue Dr. Felton in the field as their champion, they stand in the attitude of indersing his position.

Mr. Pat Walsh's Six Votes.

Mr. Pat Walsh will doubtless add the six votes of Richmond to Major Bacon's col-

When he and his friends had a mass meeting called on about eight days' notice, it was settled that they intended to carry the county for Bacon. General Gordon's friends have made a gallant fight, no matter what the result of today's mass-meeting may be. With a primary they could have carried Richmond county. As it is they have stirred the voters deeply and put the Honorable Pat up to his stumps.

The crowd that would not let General Gordon speak when he had been invited to do so will not be apt to let a meeting declare for delegates in his favor. That crowd can fill the court house much easier than it filled the opera house, and control it much more thoroughly. One thing is very significant. The Gordon men demanded the right to have a ballat-box opened, that each man might vote. The Chronicle replies by sayng that the vote of the mass-meeting will be taken "by viva-voce vote or by holding up of hands." Mr. Walsh talks of "an Atlanta ring." If such an attempt was made to muzzle the voice of the people of Atlanta as he is now making to muzzle the voice of the people of Augusta, "the ring" that tried it would be ground into powder

The Feeling in Canada.

With the exception of New England the entiment of the country at large is in favor of a pacific settlement of the codfish and mackerel troubles. The Canadians underand the situation. They know that our government will stand almost anything for the sake of peace. This may account for the war-like talk o the blue noses. Such talk is cheap, and moreover it is safe. We are told that the British man-of-war, Bellerophon, is now at Halifax, and that she will soon be joined by the Dido, Garnet, Emerald and Lily. A member of the Canadian parliament is quoted as saying: "There will be no half-way measures about the speedy settlement of this question. We shall force it upon the states to declare whether they will keep their fishing vessels out of our water, or whether we shall send them to the bottom." It is openly said that if the Canadian cruisers meet with any show of resistance, they have orders to shoot our vessels out of the water. All this may be a little annoying but it is harmless. If our fishermen will keep cool and be patient, the two governments will settle their differences. It is too big a ques tion for individuals to attempt to decide.

A Change of Eighteen Votes.

As the returns from Tuesday come in General Gordon's victory is the more over whelming.

A change of 18 votes would have given him every county that acted on Tuesday He was beaten 6 votes in Columbia, and a change of 4 votes would have given him the delegates. He was beaten 27 votes in Catoosa, and 14 votes changed would have put him through. A change of 18 votes, there fore, would have given Gordon 9 counties on Tuesday to Bacon 0, and 20 votes to Bacon 0. As it was, 7 counties out of 9 and 16 votes to 4 is good enough.

It may be said that a stroke of lightning saved Bacon in Columbia. Colonel W. P. Crawford was one of the most influentia Gordon men in Columbia. The day before the selection of delegates the Mays residence, his sister's home in which Governor Craw ford's library and all the Crawford silver and papers were kept, was fired by a stroke of lightning. This kept Colonel Crawford Mr. Mays and others from the county meet ing, where the vote stood 54 to 60. No one doubts that more than the needed six votes would have been given for Gordon had the Crawfords and their friends been out.

Major Bacon and his little Macon ring are fighting by the skin of their teeth. They claimed every county that acted on Tuesday. They got only 2, and a change of 18 votes would have lost both of them. On the other band, General Gordon beat Major Bacon over 400 votes in Murray, six to one in Lumpkin-85 in Lumpkin, 91 in Gordon, and so overwhelmingly in Carroll and Polk that there was no count made. Had Hart and Haralson not postponed, the result would have been as overwhelming in those coun-

These figures show unmistakably that the people are with Gordon. In these "safe" Bacon counties he beat Bacon out of sight. The only chance for the Macon ring is to keep the campaign away from the people. This is just what they are trying to do. In the meantime the Gordon men will keep at work. It is best to guard against even so phexpected a thing as a stroke of lightning, and to have on hand the 18 votes which stood last Tuesday between Bacon and the loss of every county that acted on that day.

Hair-Splitting Congressmen. Hereafter, when shrewd newspapers and politicians desire to solidify southern democrats in opposition to any reasonable meas ure they will merely cry out "subsidy!" and the thing is done. By a careful but liberal use of this word it will be possible to defeat any appropriation. It is in this way that the proposed appropriation for carrying of the mails between the United States and Central and South America has been defeatd. It has been dubbed a subsidy, and th consequence is that a majority of the southern democrats have felt that they were performing a patriotic feat when they voted

Let us admit, for the sake of the argu ment, that the proposed appropriation of $800,000 for increasing the mail facilities with Central and South America is a subsidy, what is the nature of the vast appropriation for the rivers and harbors of the country, for which these same patriotic gentlemen were eager to vote? Many democrats of an eco nomical turn of mind do not hesitate to say that the volume of subsidies in the river and harbor bill is a scandal to the party and to the country. THE CONSTITUTION is not inclined to go this far, but it does not hesitate to say that two-thirds of the river and harbor subsidies are practically wasted and thrown away, while the appropriation for increasing our steamship mail facilities is in the direction of opening up new, inviting and profitable fields of trade. The money that is appropriated for many of the inland creeks and rivers is practically thrown away, and yet the appropriations, not being known to the congressional mind as subsidies, are voted for with great una nimity. The vast sums included in the river and harbor bill are voted out of the treasury for the purpose of increasing trade and commercial facilities, but an appropriation quite as legitimate is defeated because it is called a subsidy. Southern democrats ought by all means to be consistent. They cannot deceive anybody by hiding behind the word

'subsidy.' Years ago Benjamin Franklin declared that the increase of mail facilities was merely the forerunner of increased and enlarged commercial relations. This is the end that has been aimed at by those who favor the appropriation which has been termed a subsidy. It is a matter that greatly affects the south ern states, for if there were adequate, or even partially adequate, mail facilities between this section and the great trade fields lying south of us, a great impulse would be given to trade of all sorts. Our business men, our capitalists and our workingmen would reap the fruits of such an enterprise. THE CONSTITUTION is not opposed to the policy which makes the river and harbon bill possible, but it is of the opinion that congressmen who are too conscientions to vote for an appropriation which they call a subsidy, ought to be conscientious enough not to throw away the people's money on internal subsidies that will amount to nothing whatever. In other words, THE CONSTITU-TION, while it is thoroughly in favor of internal improvements, believes that congress men who are particular in one direction, ought, in order to be consistent, to be particular in all directions. Neither honesty nor patriotism is worth much if it is not tion which the votes of southern congres men have defeated. that it is no more a subsidy than the vast appropriations made to improve inland rivers and creeks that can never be made navigable; that it is no more a subsidy than the appropriations for the fast mail service at the north. Men may split hairs in argument, but votes are very awkward affairs to split hairs with.

"TIFFIN" is the name of a wide place in the road somewhere in the state of Ohio. The people of Tiffin are a brave and warlike tribe. Somehow these Tiffinites have heard of the recent tour of Hon. Jefferson Davis. The "sons of veterans" resident at Tiffin constituted themselves a sort of wild cat club the other night for the purpose of hanging Mr. Davis in effigy. Lots of people turned out to see that the job was well done. Prominent in the congregation could be seen the goddess of liberty, the American eagle and the star spangled banner. A figure in female apparel was waltzed out amid hisses and groans, and howls and yells. Then all sang, "We'll Haug Jeff Davis on a Sour Apple Tree." The bloodthirsty Tiffinites "strung up" the horrified and trembling dummy, and after enthusiastic speeches and music by the band, the young vets and their friends retired to peaceful slumbers.

THE two sons of Prince Albert who made a voyage round the world in the Bacchante are very sensible and wide awake English youngsters. Their parents, determined to teach them self-reliance, but giving them a taste of real life, had them shipped as middles, with private instructions that their royal blood was not to save them from the ordinary middy's duties. They have written a book detail-ing their various experiences, which Englishmen are now perusing with great interest.

Zola recognizes in the "man who lives in constant contact with the soil" a certain element of dignity and even grandeur of character, to which he expresses his intention of doing fall justice.

The Texans Lock Up a Man Because He Says He Knows Jesus.

SHERMAN, Texas, June 3 .- A sad case of mental derangement has been under investigation in the office of County Judge Gregg today. For ome time a man in tatters and rags, and with heavy red locks dangling down over his shoulders, has been wandering around the town of Pottsboro ten miles northwest of this city. He has made a practice of appearing at doors without east warning, and inquiring for matches, and in one or two instances has stepped in the rear door quite a lot of the aboved named article. esence became a source of much annoyance ladies of the town, and Constable Ingraham placed him under arrest, and this morning brought im to Sherman for a hearing before a jury of in estions were put to the man who answered

I don't own any property and neither do they. I don't know whether I have any father. I have a mother but don't know whether she is a widow or not." In suswer to a question as to whether he had ever said he was Christ, he replied: "No, I'm not Christ; I'm just an Injun Baptist—that's all." In regard to what caused him to be sick and wander around, he said: "Some time in the summer season a mad dog bit me on the left leg. I had one fit and that is all I remember. I had a mad stone which I found in the ground, but I buried it again in the place where I found it. I know Christ and his brother. They both live in the Indian territory. One of them is named Jesus and one is Bill. The Bible tells about Jesus and he preaches and sometimes saves sinners, but mostly runs a saw mill." The jury retired and found him non compos mentis, and the Injun Baptist now lingers at the county almshouse where he will undergo treatment.

The Pastor of the Third Baptist Church and the Rev. A. F. Lee Debate Lively. A lively scene was presented at the Third Baptist church on Jones avenue night before last. It was in the nature of a spirited debate between the Rev. Mr. Pickettt, of that church, and the Rev. A. F. Lee of the Christian church. For the past two weeks a most interesting revival has been in progress at the Third Baptist church. Every night the building is crowded and at every meeting there are new applicants for the prayers of the church. Night before last Mr. Lee, who was once member of the Baptist church, was s an interested spectator Pickett's sermon he made son ing Mr. Pickett's sermon he made some very pointed illusions to other faiths, and in doing so spoke of some one who had left the church and joined the "Campbellites," as he termed them. This one he is said to have pronounced a hypocrite. His sermon was throughout a stirring, warm and appreciated one by his congregation, but his allusion to other denominations was rather pointed. When Mr. Pickett had completed his talk, Mr. Lee, who felt certain that he had been alluded to by Mr. Pickett, acrose from his seat and began to reply. His start was as warm and thorough as Mr. Pickett's had been but he was suddenly cut short in been anueur arose from his seat and began to reply. His start was as warm and thorough as Mr. Pickett's had been, but he was suddenly cut short in his discourse by Mr. Pickett ordering him to sit down. The little debate created a genuine sensation. The congregation looked from one preacher to the other, and wondered what would came next and an intense silence ensued. Mr. Lee, of course, sat down, but in a second arose and started to leave the church. At the same time a large number of the congregation, friends to Mr. Lee, started out too. As soon as Mr. Pickett saw the crowd leaving he cried out; "Oh, yes; the devil is going out. All you who are not Christians go on."

The congregation was so large that Mr. Lee and his friends were not missed when they lett, and the meeting went on. After the affair the minister asked those who indorsed his course to come up and shake hands with him, and every one present did so.

Yesterday the little episode was freely and abundantly discussed on the streets, in the work-shop and behind the counter, and created quite a feeling. Mr. Lee threatened during the day to go before a justice of the peace and swear out a war-rant for Mr. Pickett, charging him with slander while Mr. Pickett's friends threatened generally to have Mr. Lee appear in police court to answer the charge of disturbing public worship, How-ever, neither movement was made. MONEY FOR SOLDIERS.

Important Opinion Affecting Maimed Ex-

Attorney General Clifford Anderson has just endered an opinion of much importance to asimed ex-confederate soldiers. There are four acts under which the main naimed ex-con ed ex-confederate soldiers of Georgia are paid a commutation for artificial limbs. The first of these acts provided that such payments should be made every five years. The second extended the benefits of the first to maimed soldiers who enlisted in Georgia regiments, left the state after the war, and then returned to become cftizens once more. The third al-tered the time of the payments, making it ever three years. The fourth extended the benefits of the first to maimed soldiers who were wounded during the war and after wards lost their limbs as a result.

Some time ago, the question was sprung as to the time when a maimed soldier entitled to the benefits of the several acts could draw his money. For instance, if one should draw one hundred dollars for a lost leg on June 4, 1836, the question was should he be compelled to wait three years for his next payment, or should he be allowed to receive it at the next period in course prescribed by the acts? What brought up this question was that certain maimed soldiers neglected to draw their money at the time prescribed by the act, but drew it several months, or even a year, after-ward. They wished to draw future amounts at the times prescribed in the acts.

In order to have the question authoritatively answered Governor McDaniel referred the entire matter to Attorney General Anderson for his opinion. The sist of the opinion is that the first allowance was due immediately after the passage of the act of September 20, 1879, the second immediately after the passage of the act of September 26, 1883, and the third will be due on the 26th day of September next. Notwithstanding the fact that a maim-ed soldier may have failed to draw his first allowance until just before, or even after, the second became due, he is not required to wait three years before he can receive the second In other words, he may receive the first after it is due, the second when it is due, and then all others at the regularly pre-

Two charming little misses will impersonate Cinderella, one a little brunette eight years old, and a little blonde, aged twelve years. One of the sisters will be impersonated by a young man about seventeen years old, whose physique and general appearance for an old maid sister, is decidedly in harmony with her dialogue, which is most ridiculous from beginning to end. The play will be well sustained throughout by Mrs. Beaton's little pupils, and together with dozens of popular songs and catchy medleys it will doubless be one of the most entertaining exhibitious of juvenile talent ever produced. The tall man smiled and gently nodded. "A few years ago," continued the drummer, "a ornado rattled through the mountains in western and no mistake. It carried away one corner of the house, leaving In the corner that was carried away was the paror, and in the parlor was the farmer's daughter, who was deeply absorbed in playing the piano.

The tornado yanked her and the tuneful instrument into a big oak tree and laft them. "There is nothing surprising in all that," said the tall man.

"Perhaps not, my friend," replied the drum mer, "but you should wait until I finish. About o'clock in the afternoon the farmer, who was searching for a few pieces of his daughter, stopped under the tree. The tall man sighed.

A red-haired horse dealer from Tennessee broke the silence.

"Gentlemen," he said, "I once lived in West Tennessee, near the Mississippi river-a pretty good country for tornadoes itself. There man named Brown, who lived on the big near Fort Pillow. He was well family a handsome two-story brick house. About the time he got it completed, the road commissioners came along and changed the big road so as to make it run right along by his back gate. It made Brown mad. He'd stand at his front gate and swear by the hour. One day a tornado struck the house and gave it a whirl. Brown thought his time had come, and began to pray; but, before he got down to real work, the tornado passed, and he found his house unburt. But, gentlemen, when he walked to the front door to take a look at the landscape, you may take my best horse if he didn't find the big road right where he wanted it. "Quite correct, sir; they sometimes play the old scratch. But occasionally, gentlemen, they accomplish a great deal of good. A case in point, gentlemen, with your kind permission, I will relate. The suggestion was accepted and acted upon. A man with a deep bass voice told the next story. "I am a lawyer, gentlemen, and, in my younger days, rode the circuit in the neighboring state of Alabama. You are aware that the state aforesaid is itself subject to the devastating influences of the tornado. In fact, were the tornado ameanable to the law, many citizens of the state aforesaid could, through the courts, obtain from it heavy

"But these preliminary remarks are not to the point. Relative to the tornado, I remember an incident of its vagaries. A party of lawyers, I being one of the party, desired to proceed to a town twenty miles distant to attend court. A picnic party had retained-I mean had hired all the horses and vehicles in the town from which the party of lawyers aforesaid desired to proceed. It was, therefore, necessary to walk or to miss the first day of the court. While the party aforesaid was discussing the dilemma, a tordado suddenly pounced upon the town. It picked up the party aforesed, and carried each of its members to the town where the court was to be held, without damaging either person or wearing apparel."

The drummer rewarded the lawyer by affectionately shaking hands with him. His supply of cigars was exhausted.

The Savannah News disposes of the letter of Hon.

C. C. Black thus:

Hon. J. C. C. Black, of Augusta, in a lengthy letter in the Chronicle of that city, advocates the election of Major Bacon. The gist of Mr. Black's epise is that General Gordon was a good soldier, but asn't the qualities necessary to make a good govenor. As this is not the first time that this sugstion has been made by the Bacon men, it is not out special consideration. Whatever influence he letter may have in the campaign will be due the name attached to it rather than to anything contains. There are Gordon men who are ready, ubtless, to show that Major Bacon hasn't the alties which are required in a governor, and ty can make out about as good a case, perhaps, but Major Bacon as Mr. Black has made out sainst General Gordon. The truth is, that it is impossible to foretell what sort of a governor a nan will make. There are plenty of instances where predictions with respect to governors have alled. As public men are viewed from a pattisan tandpoint speculations relative to their fitness for fiftee. Whether by friends or enemies, the not worth much. While it has be true that Major Bason is better fitness for overnor than General Gordon is, it will be admited by all fair minded men, doubtless, that the nestion whether he is or not cannot be determined except by actual trial; and as there is not unch probability that both will reach the governorship, we may assume that the question, as to thich has the superior qualifications for governor, ill remain unsettled. It is certain that there is a vide difference between the mental characteriscs of the two men, and that one is better adapted blooking after the details than the other, but here may be times when the overnor will be required to exercise igher powers of mind than are required to disagree the duties of a clerk. But because a man an do the work of a clerk it doesn't follow that a man who can lead an army can't be a states.

he county convention. It was not, at the time, anticipated that so many Gordon men would be present. When the day came the editor, who is ex-officio chairman of the Bacon-democratic committee, suddenly became converted to the primary plan. In spite of ringwork, cajolery and fraud, Haralson will yet vote for Gofdon.

Saysthe Griffin News:

As between Gordon and Bacon, Spalding county is obliged to vote against the man whose inordinate smbiftion caused J. S. Boynton to lose the office of governor when the whole state was of the opinion that he was justly entitled to it.

Major Bacon's recognized and confidential adviser and chief-of-staff-boildy declares that he will not vote for the nominee of the party, unless Bacon happens to be the man. It is fair to presume that master and servant understand each other. The Haralson Banner says:

The Haralson Banner says:

The Cedartown Advertiser says General Gordon will speak in Buchanan Tuesday, and it wouldn't be astonished if Haralson sent Gordon delegates. Ah, Friend Freeman, we think we speak the sentiment of four-fifths of the people of Haralson county when we say that our people are not so silly as to allow a man to get away with their judgment with his old war tales. We know the gallant general's strongp int—his war record. Our people want a governor—not a general—and they want to name the man, and not Atlanta.

And yet the editor of the Banner was not willing to trust that four-fifths when it had assembled, but headed a riotous demonstration to prevent action. It is hard that the stubborn people did not permit him'to deliver the goods.

It should never be forgotten that so indecent was Major Bacon's haste to open the campaign on Mr.

on, the major was juggling with the county ringmasters. His haste on that occasion was only equalled by his haste to get out of the Ninth Georgia regiment during the war.

The Butler Heraid says:

We irrequently hear the Bacon men sing, "The war is over. What has the record of General Gordon as a soldier to do with the issues." It is true the war is over, but as long as gratitude holds a place in the human heart, the people of the south, and more especially of Georgia, will delight to do honor to one of the moet gallant and large hearted soldiers of the late war.

Now, unfortunately for Major Bacon, when in the "dark days of the war," the services of southern men were needed at the front, he was during the most trying period of that mighty struggle, when his services were needed the most, at home in easy position. Those were the days when it required great sacrifices for a man to serve his country at the "front." General Gordon gave to the south his services when and where most needed; Major Bacon did not, Each voluntarily made his own record without reference to gubernatorial aspirations, but the people will certainly take into consideration the records thus made. Major Bacon did no more in staying at home for more than half the war than did many honorable men; but General Gordon, with the opportunity to retire, remained at the front, knowing that in so doing it might mean death as any day. He knew, however, that he was at the place where his beloved south most needed his arm, and there he remained as long as the stars and bars floated out to the breeze.

Of course the war is over: but our people will never forget that General Gordon was with, and one of our soldiers until our cause went down in hopeless night. They will remember that General Gordon served them in a manner that truly "tried men "souls." Major Bacon did not. The difference is great. If the war records of the two men were reversed, we wonder if the Bacon men would be as ready and anxious to pass over their caudidate's record

COWETA FOR GORDON.

Enthusiam Created by His Speech in New nan on Wednesday.

NEWNAN, Ga., June 3.—[Special.]—Yesterday morning General Gordon arrived here on the train from Carrollton, and was met at the depot by a number of his friends, including the Senoia rass band. He was escorted to the residence of Captain T. M. Jones whose guest he was for break-fast. He afterwards went to his rooms at the Vir-ginia hotel, where he was called upon by great numbers of his friends from all portions of the county. He spoke in the opera house, and the city was full of our leading citizens from all portions of the county, and the opera house was filled with the best people of he county.

During his whole speech he was listened to with great attention and frequent cheers.

When he concluded he said he would like to know how his; audience stoodlas between himself and Major Bacon. He asked all those who favored Major Bacon to hold up their hands. Not more than twelve or fifteen responded. He then asked all in favor of Gordon to hold up their hands. Arrangements of the Gordon Men-The Delegates to be Voted For.

Augusta, Ga., June 3.—[Special.]—The friends of General Gordon have organized for to-day's fight, although they have but little hope of winning under the provision made for voting.

At their meeting they passed resolutions which will be presented to the mass meeting tomorrow. These resolutions request that Major Black be made chairman of the meeting tomorrow. ing; that a ballot nox, presided over by two friends of each candidate, appointed by the chairman, shall be provided at some point in the city hall where each democrat may deposit his vote; that twelve delegates and twelve alternates be voted for for each candidate. The court house will not hold over 350 people. At least 1,000 will be present. If a ballot box is not provided, only a small portion of the growd can vote and hundreds of democrats will thus be disfranchised. It is believed the Bacon men will capture the court house and hold it and refuse to allow a ballot box. A double-leaded leader in this morning's Chronicle says: "Let every man turn out and assist in the viva voce vote or the holding up of hands." This is understood to mean that the ballot box will be denied the people, and the majority of the crowd in the courtroom will decide for the people of Richmond county. This intimation, with the knowledge that the machinery is all in the hands of the Bacon men, will keep many Gordon men away from the courthouse. The countrymen, who are almost solid for Gordon, will not come to town at all. The Gordon delegates to be voted for are as can vote and hundreds of democrats will thus be at all. The Gordon delegates to be voted for are as

Delegates—C. C. Jones, W. H. Howard, W. E. Keener, W. B. Young, H. D. D. Twiggs, S.W. Mays, J. S. Hook, L. T. Blome, R. W. Hunt, W. T. Cone, J. J. Dayis and C. A. Doolittle.

Alternates—H. Myers, R. G. Hitt, W. I. Delph, H. F. Campbell, F. A. Calhoun, L. B. Evans, A. J. Smith, J. W. Clarke, Carlton Hillyer, G. F. Lamback, W. J. Davidson and I. L. Stansell.

LINCOLTON, Ga., June 3.—[Special.]—Now, as to the position of the Lincolton News, it says listinctly that it entered the Bacon ranks becaus its desire was and is to voice the sentiment of the people of Lincoln, and not from principle or from any opinions. Does not the following, which the writer clipped from an article in reply to 'Citizen' n last week's issue warrant the above concluthe sentiment of Lincoln county; all this is the ultimatum of our wishes. And when the wishes of a conclusively declared as in the present gubernatorial race, the News hesitated not to align itself

There was a large attendance and a good speech was delivered by Dr. Carlton. On last night the citizens of Rut-ledge met Dr. Carlton and he also addressed them. How Bacon Carried Columbia. We print the following account of the meeting in Columbia county. General Gordon never had a letter from that county and his friends ex-pected no vote for him at all. It will be seen that Major Bacon beat him only six votes although the county was "fixed" up in Major Bacon's inter-est and the meeting was not called for the purpose of electing delegates. It is a good showing for Condesting delegates.

or electing delegates. It is a good showing for Gordon in Columbia.

Thomson, Ga., June 3.—Columbia county for Bacon and this is the modus operandi. Your correspondent was not on the ground but gets his report from one of Columbia county's most reliable gentlemen—Thomas E. Darsey, He says: The assembly at Appling was called together for the purpose of electing an executive committee. A party of Harlemites, of the Bacon persuasion, hired every hack in Harlem and got together every Bacon man possible and was on hand tor business. After getting together they passed several resolutions, before the election of the committee. After electing the committee they resolved themselves into a nominating convention as they knew they had a majority, and as a matter of course nominated Bacon delegates by sixty for Bacon and fifty-four for Gordon. Thus securing by straightout trickery a straightout Gordon county for Bacon. Gordon in Columbia.

A SALTY CARD,

In Which a Macon Merchant Says a Few Plain Words.

Mr. George C. Price, the brother cot Mayor Price of Macon, is one of the most suc ful and prominent merchants of that city, and is also one of the most influential gentlemen of Bibb county. Consequently the following letter, written by him to a committee of Eatonton gentle men, deserves more than passing notice. It will be remembered that a citizens' meeting of Eaton-tonians passed resolutions! censuring the exagge-rated reports of the Telegraph of the joint discus-sion in Eatonton. This meeting made a true statement of what was done that day and asked that it be published by the Telegraph. They met with a flat refusal, which created great indignation among the citizens of Eatonton, and which prompted the following letter, which is taken from the columns of the Eatonton Messenger: audience by Payson S. Whatley, in the following words:

"Ladies and fellow citizens: He is not our best citizen and our purest patriot who served his country only in times of war. But he who after serving his country nobly and bravely on the field—after having bared his breast to the battle's storm—after having poured out his patriotic blood in the crimson tide—returned to his oppressed-and conquered people, and shoulders again their cause when they were weary in defeat, he who rallied our crushed and bleeding manhood and bore their cause back in the victories of peace on the forum, even unto their restoration in the union and the vindication of their honor and character—such an one is indeed our purest patriot and the grandest specimen of southern manhood and southern character. I now have the distinguished honor of introducing to you one whose deeds are as grand and manganalimous in peace as they were brave a 4 chivalric in war. One whose name is inseparably connected with every grand achievement in the American government from the revolution of 1860 to his own political victory as governor of Georgian 1886. One whose name is familiar to every particitic hearthstone in the American nation. One whose name will godown in story and song as long as the English language carriesour legends and our history to the generations yet unborn. One whose rectument when the difference in the following letter, which is taken from the columns of the Eatonton Messenger:

Maron Halled on the fire restoration of the fire alone with the Hon, J. B. Gordon and many of his supporters. You may again rest easy when you know that the G. G. T. these seen fit to death with the abuse it is heaping upon the cliticans of the fillo nected with the said paper, and think it was as little as the G. G. T. could have done to, have given your card as respectful a reply as one genteman or set of gentlemen should give to another. To show what effect the G. G. T. is having, a letter received by Mr. J. C. Bannon, of Lyons & Cline, written from Albany, Dougherty county, by one who asserts that he is a Bacon man and expects to vote for him, says that notwithstanding the claim of the strongest of Mr. Bacon's supporters, Dougherty county will certainly go for Gordon, and that Gordon can credit his success to the abuse of the Telegrah and Messenger. The editor's comments upon your card will and certainly should hurt the great and good Telegraph, also the cause of the Hon. A. O. Bacon, not only in Bibb and Putnam counties, but in every section of the state. There are many here who are sick of the Telegraph's abuse of each and every one whose views seem to differ with its own. Believing that I express the feeling of the people, I am, yours respectfully.

THE PICKENS MEETING. Something Further About the Trick of the

Mr. F. C. Tate, member of the state committee, makes the following statement in regard to the Pickens county meeting. He says the follow ing is true and defies contradiction.

Jasper, Ga., June 3—Editors Constitution: The Pickens county mass meeting was called by the chairman of the democratic executive committee of Pickens county.

of Pickens county.

No persons participated in the meeting but democrats.

There was no bolting or withdrawal from the meeting by any democrats.

There were no citizens who came to or for the purpose of attending the meeting on the 11:30 or 12 m. train.

We give place to the above at Mr. Tate's re juest. In regard to it we have this to say: As we write there is a gentleman before us who was in the meeting of democrats held after an adjournment of the citizens' meeting, who says that the meeting was held because of the indignation felt by the democrats of the county over the action of the morning meeting. Hon. Lem J. Aired was called to the chair. The following resolutions were read by Mr. Alred and were unanimously adopted.

Whereas, The meeting called on today to nominate delegates to the gubernatorial convention in Atlanta on the 28th of July, was only called as a citizens' meeting; and Whereas, After said meeting had assembled a resolution was offered by W. H. Simmons that all persons participating in the meeting should be bound by its proceedings, and whereas, also, L. J. Alred offered an amendment that no person should be allowed to vote but democrats, and to strike out the words "citizens' meeting" and insert "democratic meeting," which amendment was voted down by the citizens' meeting, and said meeting proceeded to nominate delegates for A. O. Bacon.

Resolved. That we protest against the proceedings of this meeting, which was not a democratic meeting, and that we proceed to organize the democratic party of Pickens county, that the democratic party of Pickens county and democratic convention at Atlanta,

Resolved, That there be a meeting of the democratic party of Pickens county on Saturday, the 3d day of July, to nominate delegates to the gribernatorial convention.

In addition to the above we learn from undoubted authority that Mr. Tate, the chairman of the county committee, called this meeting of the citi-zens of Pickens county on his own motion. The call was not printed in any paper, but a few written notices were sent around and posted up nine days in advance of the meeting. When Mr. Cardays in advance of the meeting. When Mr. Car-ter Tate was asked why his father had not called a meeting of the executive committee he stated that he did not know whether there was any executive committee or not?

Why a Statesman? CARTERSVILLE, Ga., May 30.—Editors Constitution: I see that the Macon Bacon organ is continually alluding to Major Bacon as a statesman. What is there in the record of Major Bacon's life to show that he is a statesman? Can Major Bacon's friends point to one act of statesmanship having ever originated with Major Bacon? What great speech has he ever made? Where has he great speech has he ever made? Where has he ever displayed any great wisdom? What great good has he ever performed? It is true that he managed on one occasion to make a two hour's speech before the railroad committee of the house, and that he defeated the bill which had been passed by the senate to give the farmers and other citizens of Georgia the right to sue the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad in the counties in which they lived for damage to person or loss of property. Major Bacon may be a great statesman, but the people of Georgia have never found it out. Let the Macon ring organs hush up this stuff about Bacon being a statesman. He is a man of ordinary ability, and a good railroad syndicate lawyer: but he can't stand knee high in the forum of statesmanship.

General Gordon and Mr. Hill. MACON, Ga., June 2, 1886,-Editors Consti-

Conclusively declared as in the present gubernatorial race, the News hesitated not to align itself accordingly."

Is not its position rather awkward, if not embarassing? If, however, this is indeed its wish, that is, to represent the majority, is it not about time for it to flop?

Troup Certain for Gordon. WEST POINT, Ga., June 3.—Editors Consti-tion—You can put Troup down certain for Gordon. He will carry our town two to one. We have the count on it. We think THE CONSTITUTION right, and that it will not deceive its readers, but right, and that it will not deceive its readers, but you can read the Maoon Telegraph and everything looks lovely for Major Bacon, and it puts its readers in bad shape. I saw a reader of the Telegraphia few days ago bet that General Gordon would not be nominated. He was relying on the statements of the Telegraph and will get badly left. I hope THE CONSTITUTION will always be as reliable as it has been in the past. Troup will go for Gordon.

He was Asked for a $300 Bond. George Hamilton, the darky, who made the desperate assault on Lou Humphreys night before last, was arraigned in police court yesterday morning. The evidence showed that Hamilton had struck the woman showed that Hamilton had struck the woman violently across the head several times with a heavy stick and that the licks had been given without any provocation. The wounds were ugly and painful, and could have been made only by a man in a terrible temper. Judge Anderson so believed, and after fining Hamilton $10 and cost for disorderly conduct asked him for a bond to the city court for $300 for assault with intent to murder.

NEW YORK, June 3.—Interest in today's stock market, in the absence of any news having an ap-preciable effect upon values, centered upon Richnond and Danville, and later the stock advanced mond and Danville, and later the stock advanced sharply upon the prospect of obtaining complete control of the terminal property. A story was circulated on the street that the company's leased lines had been secured by sales of terminal stock owned by the Danville company. A committee of terminal stockholders has been asking for proxies to be used at the next election, claiming that the Danville company had lost certain and they are Danville company had lost control, and they propose to put the stock to figures at which the present holders will sell. The market opened heavy, generally at ½ to ½ per cent decline, although Pacific Mail was off ½ and Louisville and Nashville 3/2 per cent. There was moderate business only accompanied by considerable weakness, especially in Louisville and Nashville. The market was then rallied and before noon was in the neighborhood of the opening prices. Later, however, there was a free selling movement, and prices were carried down rapidly after one p. m. In the last hour the market became strong throughout, generally supposed to be in consequence of the support given by the present bull party. The market closed strong. Green & Co., in their report on cotton futures today, say: There was more doing, but at quite a break in prices and generally selling out of recent investments. Selling was about six points lower, and, while a trifle steadier feeling prevailed at that break, there was no reactionary tendency. A sharp break in silver quota-tions from London and improved crop advices from the Texas district were the principal depressing features. June was very quiet and continues under

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Produce.

Special to The Constitution. CHICAGO, June 8—A dull campaign in wheat progressed very successfully again today, July option advancing to 79½ c shortly after the noon hour, or a full advance of 5c from inside figures of yesterday. In the afternoon the market broke off 11/4 day. In the afternoon the market broke off 11/60 from the top figures of the day, and closed about 5/60 higher than yesterday. There were evident fears of a squeeze in July delivery, and many short traders showed an inclination to cover. The feeling was nervous and excited throughout the entire day. Liverpool advices reported a slightly improved feeling, but the London market was quiet and easy. The amount of wheat on passage showed an increase of 1,250,000 bushels over last week.

Corn ruled a little firmer on the regular board, but was easy again in the afternoon.
Oats ruled firmer and closed a shade higher.
There was a stronger feeling in provisions, and the market closed 27%@30c higher.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Stocks as Reported at the New York Stock

NEW YORK, June 3.—Interest in today's stock market, in the absence of any news having an ap-preciable effect upon values, centered upon Rich-mond and Danville, and later the stock advanced sharply upon the prospect of obtaining complete control of the terminal property. A story was cir-culated on the street that the company's leased lines had been secured by sales of terminal stock owned by the Danville company. A committee of terminal stockholders has been asking for proxies to be used at the next election, claiming that the Danville company had lost control, and they pro-pose to put the stock to figures at which the present holders will sell. The market opened heavy, generally at ½ to ¼ per cent decline, although Pacific Mail was off ½ and Louisville and Nashville ½ per cent. There was moderate business only, accompanied by considerable weakness, especially in Louisville and Nashville. The market was then rallied and before noon was in the neighbor-hood of the opening prices. Later, however, there was a free selling movement, and prices were carwas a recessing movement, and precessive carried down rapidly after one p. m. In the last hour the market became strong throughout, generally supposed to be in consequence of the support given by the present bull party. The market closed strong. The net result of the day's business is declines of fractional amounts in a majority of the active list. St. Paul is off 3/4 and Louisville and Nashville 3/4 per cent. Omaha, on the contrary, shows an advance of 1 per cent, while Richmond and Danville is up 9, and Richmond and West Point 33/4. Sales 320,000 shares.

Selling was about six points lower, and, while a trifle steadier feeling prevailed at that break, there was no reactions. tionary tendency. A sharp break in silver quota-tions from London and improved crop advices from the Texas district were the principal depressing, features. June was very quiet and continues under good work. Present capacity 7,500 yards a day of heavy sheetings and shirtings, three yards to the pound.

The operatives' houses and improvements generally in excellent condition, labor abundant, lands elevated and location of property unsurpassed for health, convenience and economical production—free from the burden of municipal taxes paid by all the other Columbus mills, yet within three miles of the city of Columbus and three quarters of a mile of Columbus and Rome reilroad. The water power is the finest in the south, controlling and embracing the whole bed of the Chattahoochee river for the distance of about one mile along the lands of the company, said lands extending along its banks upon the Georgia and Alabama sides of the river. Only a small portion of the water power is required and utilized in running the present mill and the natural falls in the river render but a simple inexpensive dam of logs and plank necessary. This magnificent water power is easily controlled and has a fall of forty-two and a half (42%) feet within three-quarters (%) of a mile. With a comparatively small expenditure upon a new dam, 125,000 (one hundred and twenty-five thousand) spindles with looms in proportion can be driven by this water power. Capital for the erection of additional mills and utilization of the immense power now wasted, is all that is needed to make this property the site of a prosperous and populous manufacturing village. The personal inspection of capitalists is invited. Full and satisfactory details will be furnished on application.

"Throw up your hands!"

"You won't shoot?"

Chief Joyner has just added three new fine alarm boxes to the circuit and the frequent ringing of the bell yesterday was caused by the test made to ascertain whether or not the boxes were in working order. Now 61 is located on Wheat and Collins, 62 on Jackson and Houston, (one of the new boxes) and 63 where it was before. The boxes are now located as follows:

EDITORS CONSTITUTION: In his card to-day, Colonel L. P. Grant takes issue with me as to my recellection of what passed between us on the 27th ult., in the course of a general conversation as to the Atlanta and Hawkinsville railroad. It was my intention to quote my friend aright. Sorry hesaw into go beyond correcting what he thought was improperly stated.

The Colonel and I can have no controversy as to matters of fact.

His comments, however, would warrant one in surmising that he was not very friendly to our enterprise. Of course the Central railroad would rather the Atlanta and Hawkinsville railroad rather the Atlanta and Hawkinsville railroad remember that there are men worth five times the total cost of the road who are anxious to lease tigor twenty or more years and to pay for same 5 per cent on the bonds issued and 8 per cent on stock subscribed that they are the construct and equip the road. Isn't this sparsantee that the road when built will be a good investment when money can be borrowed for the cent. Your obedient servant.

FERRY, Ga., June 3, 1886 .- Editors Constitution: The building of the Atlanta and Hawkinsville railroad seems to have assumed such proportions as to assure the people along the line that it will certainly be built and at no late day, and they are enthusiastic. I have conversed with a large number of them and those along the line are willing to donate right-of-way through their lands, while others who are able are willing to take stock; in fact, they all seem to be willing to aid in the building of this road in every possible manner.
This road runs through one of the finest sections in Georgia and, I might say, most productive and prosperous. The lands through which it runs are level and fertile and thickly settled and will certainly yield a large and paying business to the road in the way of local freights alone, and when built will be of incalculable benefit to the merchants and business people of Atlanta, as it will open up an entirely new and large trade now reaped by other cities, and hence they ought by all means take hold and push this enterprise. Very respectfully,

W. M. Gordon.

Savannah Wins in Augusta

AUGUSTA, Ga., June 3.—[Special.]—A large crowd turned out this afternoon to see the game, hoping that our new pitcher, Conway, would be too much for the Savannah team, and he was until the sixth inning, when the visitors caught on to him and pounded him all around. In the first inning, O'Day got the little finger of his right hurt by trying to stop a hot ground ball from Hogan. Time was called for a few minutes after tying up the finger. O'Day took the box again amid ap-plause. He was at first a little ratiled, and the home team got two hits off him in this inning, with a team got two hits off him in this inning, with a total of one run, but after this he got down to work and pitched in his usual form. Until the sixth inning, it was anybody's game, Augusta only leading by one run with Savannah none, but in the sixtu nining, when Savannah got three men on bases and Morlarity hit to center field safe for one bag and brought in two men, and Stockwell hit a long fly, on which he got out, but brought in another man from third, Augusta saw that the game was the Savannahs and played with little interest from thence out. In the seventh Savannah scored two more runs by hard hitting and passed ball. Augusta made one more run in the ninth inning on an error and base hit of Suteliff. The game was full of brilliant points, among which might be named Suteliff's fine stop of a ball in centerfield, Hogan's and Kappel's base running and Manning's and Collin's fine playing on second and O'Day's pitching. McQuade gave some very bad decisions, both in favor and against Augusta In general though against the home team. Augus-ta's defeat can be attributed to the failure to hit O'Day and the Savannah's batting in the sixth and seventh inning.

Chattanooga Defeats Memphis. MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 3 .- [Special.]-There was a very small attendance this afternoon at the fourth and last game played between Memphis and Chattanooga. The contest was exciting after the sixthinning, when the score was tied. Black, who pitched for Memphis, lost the game by muffing two easy pop up flies, which fell into his hands, but were not held, and which cost a run in each instance. Shreve, the new pitcher for Chatta-nooga, did good work in the box.

Macon's Third Victory. MACON, Ga., June 3.—[Special.]—Macon won her third game from Charleston here this afternoon. Charleston put Gardner in the box and Hines to catch Macon put in Smith and Decker. Charleston played loosely from the start and Macon won at will. Gardner seemed indifferent and tossed the ball easily over the plate while Smith did his usu al effective work in the box. The Macon team played well while Charleston went to pieces on errors, being the features of their playing. In the first inning Hines was hit by pitched ball, because he made no effort to get out of way Umpire Burns refused to give him a base, whereupon Manager Cushman stated the game would go protested. As Decker, of the Macons, stepped to the bat the first time Umpire Burns called the game, when Colonel John P. Ross, in behalf of Macon friends, presented the young batsman with a handsome carrisge for his two month's old baby. Cyclone Miller, pitcher, was suspended indefinitely by Manager Peltz today for his late conduct on the dis-Following is the official score:

Diamond Dust,

Augusta has just signed Matterson, a new pitcher, who appears to be doing good work.

The St. Louis league team, which is managed by Gus Schmelz, stands fifth in the pennant race in the National league.

E. S. Hengle, the new umpire, who succeeded Young will umpire the games in Memphis when Atlanta reaches that city.

The Nashville American says that the public at that place have never witnessed such excellent base running as that done by the Atlantas. The Augusta Evening News says, that Conway of the Atlantas is one of the best pitchers in the Southern league, and that Lynch of the Atlantas is the best first baseman.

Chattanooga is by no means a weak club, and those who persist in putting her down as the tail end of the league will find that they have made a grievous mistake. Chattanooga can and will play ball.

Some of the most exciting playing of the season will be witnessed when Memphis and Nashville come together. You know that a number of people say that the pennant race is between Atlanta, Memphis and Nashville.

Thursday night Manager Scanlan of the Nationals telegraphed Spalding: "Send us a club that can play ball—7 to 0" The next evening Spalding wired Scanlan: "How much ball do you want, anywey—20 to 0."

Memphis has commenced strengthening her team so as to be able to defeat the Atlantas when they reach that city. To this end Memphis has just released Edward Santry, her present short stop, and will sign an abler player. No one can find fault with the excellent manner in which the champion Atlantas are playing ball on their present trip. All they have to do is to keep up the lick and they will win games. Yesterday they were badly off, however.

Every club in the Southern league has been shut out except Savannah, and they missed it by only one rnn, which was made in the ninth inning when Augusta defeated Savannah last Wednesday. However, their turn will come and the Savannahs will get whitewashed.

It is now said that Charleston has purchased a new pitcher from Gus Schmelz, by the name of Kirby. Manager Cushman does not appear to hestitate to spend money when he thinks that he can procure a good man. He nad a very fair pitcher in Peebles, but released him just because Atlanta managed to knock him out in one game.

The Nashville American says that the umpiring managed to knock him out in one game.

The Nashville American says that the umpiring in the Atlanta Nashville games was not of the first order, but judging from the telegraphic details received in Atlanta, the public here are inclined to believe that the umpiring has been very fair. It may be possible, however, that in doubtful cases Umpire Brennan has rendered decisions in favor of Nashville, but he is regarded everywhere as a fair and honest man.

Mr. Milton Reid Inflicts Severe Punishment Upon a Negro Who Insulted a Member of His Family -A Big Swindle in the Pool Booms De-tected-Other News of Interest.

A big excitement was created on Peachtree street, near Wheat street, yesterday morning about eleven o'clock, by a desperate and bloody fight between a white man and a negro The white man was Mr. Milton Reed and the negre was James Willis, a colored preacher. The trouble between the two men, mushroom-like, sprung up without any warning to those who were in the locality, and was in full progress when first discovered. difficulty was introduced to who witnessed any part of it by the loud cries of the darky for help. Business men and pedestrians who were within ear-shot of the cries and cared to ascertain the cause saw Mr. Reid pounding the darky over the head with something looking like a pistol, and as his hand was drawn back for each blow they saw blood spurting from the darky's head. The fight was a quick, hard one, and, fearing that it would have a serious termination, several persons who were looking hurried to the scene to separate the two men. The negro hailed the interference with delight, and the instant he saw a restraining hand was placed upon Mr. Reid skipped out. Mr. Reid however paid little attention to those who interfered and followed the darky down Wheat street and thence into Pryor. Later he was fered and followed the darky down Wheat street and thence into Pryor. Later he was seen walking hurriedly in the direction of Ivy street accompanied by the darky, who appeared to be a prisoner. The difficuly was quite a sensation on Peachtree in the neighborhood in which it occurred, and intelligence of it reachted police headquarters in a short time. Captain Moon was then detailed to investigate the matter but when he approached Mr. Reid that. matter but when he approached Mr. Reid that gentleman declined to give him any satisfac-tory information, further than saying that the negro had insulted a member of his family and that he had punished him for it. After acquiring all information possible Captain Moon decided to arrest both Mr. Reid and the negro and make cases against them in police court. This he did, charging them with discourt. This he did, charging them with disorderly conduct and quarreling. The cases will be heard in police court this morning.

Willis, the darky, is a well known preacher, and says that when Mr. Reid overtook him after he had escaped he compelled him to accompany him to his home. There a member of Mr. Reid's family identified him, whereupon Mr. Reid presented a pistol and made him kneel down. The darky had two bad gashes on his head, and from these he bled quite profusely. Mr. Reid has declined to explain his assault upon the negro further than to say that the negro used very insulting language in the presence of a member of his family.

Swindling the Pool Rooms. The base ball pool rooms have fallen victims to a sharp swindler. The swindle is one of the

to a sharp swindler. The swindle is one of the smoothest that has ever been practiced in Atlanta and one which if worked carefully almost defies detection.

It is worked by splitting a ticket and was detected for the first time yesterday.

At the Bonanza pool rooms last night after the winning tickets had been paid and the managers were squaring up the cash accounts they found that they were about fifteen dollars short. They could not understand it, and after counting over the cash two or three times and failing to bring it up to the required and failing to bring it up to the required amount, they counted the winning tickets which they had cashed. The ticket count disclosed three tickets more than had been sold. This appeared strange until the man-agers examined the tickets closely. In their examination they found three tickets that were rather odd in appear-ance when closely examined. These three were laid aside and three were laid aside and then the cash balanced all right. This caused a carrful examination of the three tickets which showed that the faces and backs were different. Then it was discovered that some one had taken the face of a ticket which had been bought several days ago and which was not then a winner and after splitting it had taken the back of a ticket stamped June 3 and pasted them together. The work was neatly done and passed without detection. The scheme was worked on both pool rooms but has been worked for the last time.

The horse, together with Mr. Bagley's other stock was placed in the stock yard on that night. On Wednesday morning when Mr. Bagley's help went to the barn to feed the stock the horse was gone and with him a saddle and briddle were missing.

A search was at once instituted and by careful work the animal was traced to Atlanta where Mr. Bagley arrived yesterday morning. No trace of the horse has been secured in the He was Asked for a Bond. Will soon be upon us. We have had a charming spring, and are now within a day of the "long and lordly days of summer." Certainly no climate on earth is more delightful than ours. Our northern friends, no matter at what season they touch within our borders, never fail to enthuse over the joys of Georgia's climate. This should make us a happy people. But are we happy? There's the rub.

To speak for ourselves, personnally, we answer in the alfirmative. And why should'nt we be? With a desire on on part to invite the confidence of the public, we have put forth only such efforts as would tend to give everybody implicit faith in our deeds. Our trade this spring, despite the alarming cry of dull times, has been overwhelmingly large, and continues just as good as we wish it. Honest, fearless, reliable state ments always in regard to our offerings, have taught the public to believe every word we utter. Tennyson in his "Merlin and Vivien" says:

> "Want of faith in aught, Is want of faith in all,"

And then goes on to say something about "So trust we all in all, or not at all." This is exactly our position. If we deccive you in a single particular we would want you to lose faith in us completely.

Now pay particular attention to what we have to say today about our offerings this week. We know times are close in some things, and for that reason we propose to give a
